SILENTNOVELLE

(Chillage Special Edition)

Here's a bunch of records I made early in my musical journey while working with This Side Music (TSM) where I released two projects (Gregory Davis's Amateur in 2007 and Gregory Davis's Pro-Amateur in 2008) and was introduced to Mick and Paul Chillage.

Mick was also working with TSM and with Paul and they had a show called "The Chillage Idiots" on XFM in Ireland. They played a few of my songs off my album and from there we developed a mutual friendship. These were the results of the union.

Most of the compositions were unreleased (Tongue was released on carpe sonum's Die Weit Ist Klang: tribute to Pete Namlook") but were submitted to both of them first for AirPlay consideration.

As a sample based hip-hop beatmaker/producer trying new things I wasn't too sure that people would like the direction that I was going in at times so if they dug it, that was stress off my shoulders. But then a bunch of bullshit happened in my life and depression sunk in. A few albums, like Bitters was the result of all of that.

After that I decided to leave that side of me alone and go back to the style I was more familiar with.

Funny, though I submitted Bitters to three labels that Mick was associated with. carpe sonum and psychonavigation. carpe sonum pretty much said anyone but you (fuck them) And whoever was running psychonavigation told me it made him feel uneasy inside. Come to find out he had multiple personalities or some shit. The third was a collaborator of his and he just had a shitty attitude towards me so whatever.

Thank God for the bloc... and Waasawki.

And if you wanted to know why the album's called Silentnovelle? Well, remember Eyes Wide Shut?

I've met a few Bill's before.

Cheers.
